Reminder: The student actors, who have worked very hard to prepare, only get one chance to perform. Young children are unpredictable in their ability to remain quiet during performances, and have been known to cause a disturbance at a critical moment in the play. For this reason, children under age five are not permitted to attend evening plays. However, lower-grade students are encouraged to attend. The opportunity to gain familiarity with classic musical theatre and to envision their own future dramatic achievement is a vital part of their Westminster experience.
